

Words

The -er suffix

To find a name for a new invention, you can first state its function and then add the -er suffix. This works for objects as well as for people who perform specific tasks.

- ▶ an object to open bottles → a bottle-opener
- a man who cleans windows* → a window-cleaner

❶ Create similar names for the following inventions:

- a machine that dispenses tissues → ...
- a person who designs planes → ...
- a machine that dries your hair → ...
- a machine that tracks cell phones → ...
- a person who repairs cars → ...

Words

The -er suffix

To find a name for a new invention, you can first state its function and then add the -er suffix. This works for objects as well as for people who perform specific tasks.

- ▶ an object to open bottles → a bottle-opener
- a man who cleans windows* → a window-cleaner

❶ Create similar names for the following inventions:

- a machine that dispenses tissues → ...
- a person who designs planes → ...
- a machine that dries your hair → ...
- a machine that tracks cell phones → ...
- a person who repairs cars → ...

Words

The -er suffix

To find a name for a new invention, you can first state its function and then add the -er suffix. This works for objects as well as for people who perform specific tasks.

- ▶ an object to open bottles → a bottle-opener
- a man who cleans windows* → a window-cleaner

❶ Create similar names for the following inventions:

- a machine that dispenses tissues → ...
- a person who designs planes → ...
- a machine that dries your hair → ...
- a machine that tracks cell phones → ...
- a person who repairs cars → ...

Words

The -er suffix

To find a name for a new invention, you can first state its function and then add the -er suffix. This works for objects as well as for people who perform specific tasks.

- ▶ an object to open bottles → a bottle-opener
- a man who cleans windows* → a window-cleaner

❶ Create similar names for the following inventions:

- a machine that dispenses tissues → ...
- a person who designs planes → ...
- a machine that dries your hair → ...
- a machine that tracks cell phones → ...
- a person who repairs cars → ...

Words

The -er suffix

To find a name for a new invention, you can first state its function and then add the -er suffix. This works for objects as well as for people who perform specific tasks.

- ▶ an object to open bottles → a bottle-opener
- a man who cleans windows* → a window-cleaner

❶ Create similar names for the following inventions:

- a machine that dispenses tissues → ...
- a person who designs planes → ...
- a machine that dries your hair → ...
- a machine that tracks cell phones → ...
- a person who repairs cars → ...

Words

The -er suffix

To find a name for a new invention, you can first state its function and then add the -er suffix. This works for objects as well as for people who perform specific tasks.

- ▶ an object to open bottles → a bottle-opener
- a man who cleans windows* → a window-cleaner

❶ Create similar names for the following inventions:

- a machine that dispenses tissues → ...
- a person who designs planes → ...
- a machine that dries your hair → ...
- a machine that tracks cell phones → ...
- a person who repairs cars → ...