

Getting around NYC

There are many exciting ways to get around in NYC that may be different from how you travel at home. Check the box for every kind of transportation you tried while visiting!

Walking

Many people walk around, hurrying from one place to the next. Walking is a great way to people watch. Look at all the different kinds of people there are in this one place!

Taxi

Yellow taxicabs have become a famous way of traveling around the city. Cab drivers must buy a medallion to put on their cars. The medallion can cost over $700,000. That would be enough to buy your parents about 23 cars! Cab drivers are not allowed to operate a cab in NYC without one of these medallions. How many medallions can you spot 😊?

Subway

The NYC subway is a train system that spreads out all over the city. Most of the subway trains travel underground. It is one of the biggest and oldest public transportation systems in the world.
