

| | | | |
|---|---|---|--|
|  |  The next evening the five hungry bunnies brought another bun- ny (then there were six hungry bunnies). Each one ate a cabbage, two carrots, and three carrots. Then they went hop-hoppy- hop right home.  |  |  The next evening the hungry bunny brought another bunny (then there were two hungry bunnies). They each ate a cabbage, two heads of lettuce and three carrots. Then they went hop-hoppy-hop right home.  |
|  |  The next evening the three hungry bunnies brought another bunny (then there were four hungry bunnies). They all ate a cabbage, two heads of lettuce and three carrots. Then they went hop-boppy-hop right home.  |  |  |

| | | | |
|---|--|---|---|
|  | the next evening the four hungry bunnies brought another bunny (then there were five hungry bunnies). They each ate a cabbage, two heads of lettuce and three carrots. Then they went hop-hippy-hop right home. |  | the next evening the rich man who owned the garden wanted what he never saw or heard of before. He went to the market and bought a rabbit and four more bunnies. He knew not what to do with them, but he was happy, that's all! |
| ABOUT BUNNIES A hungry bunny once found the vegetable garden of a rich man who never, never, never ate vegetables. So the hungry bunny ate a cabbage, two heads of lettuce and three carrots. Then he went hop-hippy-hop right home. |  | The next evening the four hungry bunnies brought another bunny (then there were five hungry bunnies). They each ate a cabbage, two heads of lettuce and three carrots. Then they went hop-hippy- hop right home. |  |

